

TO FINISH CARLTON-MACLEOD HIGHWAYS THIS YEAR—TENDERS ASKED FOR NEW ROAD ACROSS INDIAN RESERVE

The highway from Cardston to Waterton by way of Mountain View will be completed to dirt standard equivalent to the Lethbridge-Chin road this year, N. H. Bradley, district road engineer stated this morning. Tenders have already been called for the stretch from the east boundary of the park to Mountain View which, according to the contract, must be finished by October 10. Tenders will be asked for the remainder of the highway from Mountain View to Cardston in a few days. It is expected that the graveling will be done in plenty of time for next year's tourist traffic to Waterton Park.

The road from Cardston to Macleod, by way of Standoff will also be finished this year, tenders for the work being received until next Tuesday. The contract allows until October 29 for the completion of this connecting link between the Glacier House and Macleod-Edmonton highway.

Work is proceeding now on the graveling of the Nanton-Macleod road and it is probable that the new Macleod-Cardston route will be gravelled next year making a fine gravelled road from Glacier to Edmonton.

Some maintenance work is being done on the Pincher Creek Waterton Lakes highway but no extensive program is being carried on.

The work on the dirt standard highway from Lethbridge to Chin will be completed this week, according to Mr. Bradley.

If the Sunshine trail from New Dayton to Lethbridge is gravelled next year it will not be finished until late in the fall. No more graveling will be done until the stretch from Lethbridge to Stirling is brought up to dirt standard road and this will be done as part of the 1928 program.

BIG FARM MACHINERY SALES AT MACLEOD

Signs of the approaching harvest are very evident in Macleod these days, especially with the implement dealers, who are working overtime setting up binders and selling an enormous quantity of repairs. The prospect of a heavy crop is making the farmers overhaul the old binders by replacing any parts a little worn with new parts, so that they may stand the strain of the heavy grain. A great many farmers are finding their binders so much worn out and not worth repairing that they are replacing them with new ones, with the result that orders are being given quite freely for all the makes sold in Macleod.

Two of the implement firms in Macleod, the Massey-Harris Co. and the International Harvester Co., have an exhibition at their warehouses their latest models of Combination Harvesters, and both companies have booked orders for these machines. It is expected that at least five or six of these harvesters will be working in the Macleod district this year. Farmers with a large crop acreage have proved that these machines can be successfully operated, and found them to be a great saving in harvesting the crop. And so some of the progressive farmers in the Macleod district were not slow to take advantage of this latest device in harvesting machinery.

WEDDING BELLS

MCGREGOR—MCLEAN

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. McLean, Burnbrae, Macleod, at 8:30 on Wednesday evening, August 10th, when their daughter, Hester Stephen, became the bride of John Kenneth McGregor, formerly of Macleod, and now of Lethbridge, and who is a brother of Percy McGregor, of Macleod, Rev. T. T. Faichney, of Knox United Church, Lethbridge, officiating.

The bride, who entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, and by whom she was given in marriage, was beautifully gowned in a gown of orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of roses, was attended by her sister, Miss Ruth McLean, who wore a lovely gown of deep rose georgette, and carried a bouquet of sweet peas and roses. The bridegroom was attended by H. Stephenson, of Granum, as best man. Just prior to and during the ceremony Miss Lillian Andrews at the piano rendered Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The drawing room and dining room was beautifully and profusely decorated with flowers—roses, sweet peas and nasturtiums predominating.

About forty-eight guests were in attendance, and after the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. The bride's going away dress was of cocoa brown silk crepe, with hat to match, her coat being of rosewood pointed twill.

The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts. The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely hat box; to the bridesmaid, a purse, and to the groomsmen a cuff button set and tie clip.

The newly married couple are spending their honeymoon on Ontario points, and on their return will reside at Lethbridge.

DIXON—JOHNSON

A quietly pretty wedding took place at the Central United Church Parsonage, Calgary, on Monday, July 25th, when Luella Johnson, daughter of Mrs. J. Johnson, of Macleod, became the bride of Lawrence Dixon, son of Mrs. A. Dixon, of Macleod. The Rev. Avison, M.A., officiating. The newly married couple spent their honeymoon at Banff and Lake Louise, returning to Macleod on Saturday July 30th, and are now at home on 28th street.

DERBY DAY

(Contributed by Claudia Gardiner)

Derby Day—what a thrill of expectation that name gives to the heart of an Englishman. For weeks beforehand the papers have been full of the great race. Everyone is busy studying the different horses that are entered and wondering which will be the winner. At last the great day dawns, and crowds hurry to Epsom Downs.

Derby Day 1927 dawns dull and misty, but that makes no difference to the number of people going. We leave early, about nine-thirty, to avoid the crowd, or try to. For many miles our way is fairly clear, till we come within a few miles of Epsom, and then the traffic begins. There are buses, char-a-vans, motor cars, bicycles, and people walking. However, there are policemen at every turn and corner, directing traffic, and we are gradually sorted out and finally arrive on Epsom Downs. There are crowds there already and it is only ten-thirty. We find a parking place and leave our car there. The policeman tells us that people have been coming since seven o'clock and that the gypsies have been there for days.

Just in front of the parking place is a large open space and here the gypsies have camped. We decide to walk through the encampment. Before we have gone very far a gypsy woman, carrying a baby, comes up, and in a low voice says, "You have a lucky face sir, (or lady, as the case may be) give us something for the baby to bring your luck." Then, as we go on, various small children are running and crying. The camp consists of battered caravans and tents all placed in a straight line. The horses, mostly thin and unhappy looking, are picketted near the men sitting round playing cards or trading horses. The women walk up and down near them. They are all bearded looking creatures with long skirts, old shoes, and untidy hair. Some of them, if they were tidier and cleaner would be beautiful.

After we have gone through the encampment we come down near the race course. Here are crowds of people of every kind, amongst them more gypsies. All along the fence by the course, near the Grand Stand, which is empty at present, are bookies, very busy calling their odds. There are twenty-seven horses running and each bookie is calling a different one. You hear "A hundred to one on Parker," "Four to one on 'Call,' and so on. All the bookies are busy with large bets and small ones.

It is nearly twelve o'clock and, as the first race starts at one-thirty we walk back to the car for lunch. As we sit eating lunch we watch the motor cars, wagons, horse drawn buses, donkey-carts, and four-in-hands, all going in the same direction towards the Grand Stand. Four-in-hands are very grand. They are usually painted red and yellow or black and yellow with the owner's crest on the side and are drawn by four horses. They are old fashioned carriages, closed in, with seats all on the top. The owner sits on the front seat and drives. His wife or some member of his family sits beside him, and the rest of the party, who are going with him, sit on the seats behind. His coachman and two men known as the breeches dressed in red coats, white breeches, high black boots and top hats usually grey, with cockades, sit on the last seat. The lunch and other paraphernalia is carried inside the carriage, where the family ride in wet weather.

As we have now finished lunch we walk back again, this time behind the Grand Stand, and make our way to the paddock, which is on the right of the Stand. The swells are now arriving and there are big cars, beautifully dressed ladies and gentlemen in morning coats and grey top hats, in the crowd. There is a big car coming with the royal arms on it, and we get nearly squashed to death, as the crowd is pushed to one side to let it pass.

When we arrive at the paddock the first race is about to start. The crowd is very thick just here and we can hardly move in any direction. However we can see the horses going out for their race and in a minute or two they come back again. After the race is finished the fence is let down and we go with the crowd to the centre of the course. The race course is a horse-shoe shape with a hill on the centre. We make our way out to this hill and get good positions on the side, from which we can see the winning post and part of the course. We are just opposite the Grand Stand which is now black with people. In fact, everywhere we look, the ground is hidden by the hundreds of people. By using field glasses we can distinguish the King and Queen in the Royal Box.

Another race is run, but the big race is yet to come. While we are waiting, there are shouts and the sound of rushing feet behind us. As we turn to see the cause of this commotion, a man runs by quite close to us, he falls, gets up, and runs again. There is a crowd running after him and grabbing hold of him. They tear his coat off and his face is cut and bleeding. He is a big heavy man and he is caught as he reaches the bottom of the hill. We wonder who he is, what he has done, and why the police, who have been standing watching, have not interfered. Then we learn that he is a bookie, who has run off with all the money just before the race, and that those men walking off with him are private detectives. A man who tries to run off with the betting money is known as a Welsher. They are rather scarce nowadays and we think how interesting to have seen one.

We now go over to a bookie and put five shillings on "Call Boy" the bookie has a big board up with the names of all the horses running and the odds on each. When we give him our money he gives us a piece of paper with a number on it and his assistant writes the number in a big book, the name of the horse, the odds and the sum of money paid.

By the time we have done this it is almost time for the great race to start. The jockeys and horses come out and parade up and down before the Grand Stand. We have a race card which tells us the number and name of each horse and the colours the jockey is wearing. We can see the colours quite plainly and are able to distinguish "Call Boy" by the black and white halved colours of the jockey.

The starting-point is the other side of the hill. They have all disappeared and we wait in intense expectation for the sound of the bell on the Grand Stand to tell us that they have started. There is almost silence in that great crowd. Suddenly the bell rings and there is a great sharp roar as the crowd, with one accord, shouts "They're Off!" There is an aeroplane flying over the leading horse and we watch its progress round the course. It seems hours before the horses appear round the bend. We can see them quite clearly and "Call Boy" is leading! There are cheers and shouts from the crowd as the horses dash to the winning post. The race has taken two minutes and a few seconds, the fastest Derby on record.

We hurry to the bookie and collect our winnings which come to a little over a pound. There are more races to be run, but we make our way back to the car and have tea. Then we start for home. The rush begins at about a quarter past five and it is just a quarter to, now. When we reach the back of the Grand Stand we learn that the King has just left.

In spite of the dull appearance of the weather to start with, the day was perfect and ended in lovely sunshine, the first Derby for five years that it has not rained. In all it is a record day, the biggest crowd, fastest race, and no rain.

THE EMPRESS THEATRE -- CURRENT ATTRACTIONS

DICK BARTHELMESS RAISES BRISTLING BEARD FOR FIRST TIME WHEN CAST IN DESERT PLAY -- "WHITE BLACK SHEEP," COMING TO EMPRESS MON.

Richard Barthelmess, popular First National star, will be wearing a mustache, and later a beard, for the first time in his screen career, in "The White Black Sheep," a tale of desert adventure, which comes to the Empress Theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

In fact, it was the first time Dick had ever raised a crop of any sort on his face, and his accounts of the growing process during the filming are interesting.

He began work interpreting the role of the deaf and dumb beggar of Kefr Saba, Northern Palestine. For this he raised a General Grant-like beard. Then later as Robert Kincaid, a corporal of the British service in Palestine, he shaved his beard leaving a trim moustache. During the last week of production the moustache came off presenting Dick as he is known to his myriad fans—without moustache or beard.

"The White Black Sheep," which is directed by Sidney Olcott, gives the star unusual dramatic possibilities and advance reports herald it as his best picture in many months.

For the first time Patsy Ruth Miller appears opposite Dick in the leading feminine role. She enacts the part of Zelle, a Greek dancing girl, who, after several thrilling adventures, restores to Robert his faith in women.

The balance of the cast is of exceptional calibre and includes William H. Tooker, Gino Corrado, Ervils Aldred, Albert Prisco, Constance Hudson, and McDowell, Sam Appel and Templar Saxe.

CORINNE CAPTURES COMEDY CHARACTER -- BEAUTIFUL STAR WINS NEW HONORS IN "SYNCRATING SUE," COMING HERE WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY NEXT

Corinne Griffith, after several romantic productions, has gotten a hold of another light comedy picture of the sort "Classified" made famous. The dainty Duse is due at the Empress Wednesday and Thursday next in "Syncrating Sue," which New York audiences are greeting as her most finished performance on the screen.

There were not many who distinguished when "Liberty" pronounced Corinne the most beautiful woman in the world. There will be few to challenge the advance reports that "Syncrating Sue" is one of the best pictures First National has released in this season of sensational screen hits.

Cast as a piano player in a music store where she "plugs" songs to attract the attention of well known vaudeville artists, Corinne gives a wistful yet comic portrayal of a stage struck young flapper whose greatest desire is to see her name spelled out in the electric lights of Broadway.

Dancing and singing, in and out of snappy situations, mimicking, emoting, cutting up antics like the flapper she plays, Corinne handles this part with even more finesse than she showed in "Classified," which clinched her claim to highest histrionic honors.

Tom Moore plays the happy-go-lucky trap drummer in a Broadway cabaret, who is in love with the winsome "would-be" Marjorie Rambeau, well known stage star; Rockcliffe Fellows, Lee Moran, Joyce Compton and Sunshine Hart complete the cast. Richard Wallace, Hale Roach veteran, directed.

Still the happiest men are those who are dressed up when they brush the suit they have on.

the jockey is wearing. We can see the colours quite plainly and are able to distinguish "Call Boy" by the black and white halved colours of the jockey.

THE EMPRESS THEATRE -- CURRENT ATTRACTIONS

CORINNE CHEWS GUM, SLINGS SLANG AND DANCES IN NEW FILM--FIRST NATIONAL STARS TURN FROM MORE STATELY ROLES TO FAST COMEDY IN "SYNCRATING SUE," COMING TO EMPRESS MONDAY--TOM MOORE IN THE CAST

Corinne Griffith eases the role of a sophisticated, slang-lingering, gum-chewing music store piano player in her latest comedy hit, "Syncrating Sue," which will be at the Empress Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

In the same humorous vein as "Classified," which proved such a decided success, "Syncrating Sue" has been received on Broadway as an even smoother comedy.

"Syncrating Sue" tells the story of a New York song plugger who has a fervent ambition to go on the stage. Romance enters her life in the form of a penniless trap drummer, part ably filled by Tom Moore.

The manner in which these two meet and the difficulties that "Sue" encounters in furthering her ambitions for a stage career form the nucleus of plot for the exhilarating comedy.

SEVEN BOY SCOUT TROOPS USED IN PICTURE--WITH FRED THOMSON AND SILVER KING

Seven troops of Boy Scouts were used in the filming of "A Regular Scout," an F. B. O. production starring Fred Thomson which comes to the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday. The Scouts were handled under the direction of Edward B. De Groot, Los Angeles Executive of the Local Scout Council and Carl McElvey, Scoutmaster. Fred was at one time Scout Commissioner for the State of Nevada and has always been tremendously interested in the Organization. Aside from the Scout interest, the picture will have a great appeal for those who admire the Thomson type of Westerns, for its locale is in the West and Silver King.

A greatest equine star, plays a very important part. Olive Hasbrouck lends her charm in the leading female role, while others in the cast are Mary Carr, Margaret Seddon, Buck Black, William Courtwright, Bob McKim, Harry Woods and Roy Barnes. The story is by B. F. Oxford, while the continuity was made by David Kirkland. Mr. Kirkland is also responsible for the direction of the picture, and will be remembered as the director of the majority of the Thomson productions.

PRESENTATION MADE TO NEWLY WEDS

A pleasant surprise party was held Wednesday night of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dixon when the members of Mountain View Lodge No. 4, I.O.O.F., and Mountain View Rebekah Lodge No. 23, I.O.O.F., surprised them with a visit and after spending a pleasant evening presented them with handsome gifts from the two lodges on the occasion of their recent wedding.

Mrs. George Parker, Noble Grand of the Rebekah Lodge, presented Mrs. Dixon with a beautiful set of complete table linen, and Mr. Parker, in the absence of the Noble Grand of the Oddfellows' lodge, presented Mr. Dixon with a handsome cut glass bowl. Appropriate speeches were made for the occasion, and Mr. Dixon suitably replied on behalf of his wife and himself. The young couple are natives of Macleod and are very popular in the lodges and in the town where they have grown up.

MILK ALSO BYRD'S FAVORITE BEVERAGE

"He chatted with his hosts, and drank a glass of milk before retiring."

Such was the message broadcast by the Associated Press after Aviator Byrd was rescued from his good ship "America," landed in the sea, two hundred yards off the Normandy coast. Lyndberg, probably less tired than Byrd, wanted milk and a bath before retiring; Byrd wanted just a glass of milk.

What they drank is an unflattering indication of what they are. It tells the reason for this ability to stand the test, endure the strain, and win the race. The use of milk by Lyndberg and Byrd in their diet demonstrates its health and strength giving properties. These are facts for

THE MONROE DOCTRINE IN 1927

A foreigner has again had the temerity to assail the validity and impregnability of the American Monroe doctrine, and this time the attack was made in Washington itself.

During the session of the Pan-American Congress, Delegate Martinez of Venezuela fiercely opposed America's assumption of control over the destinies of South American nations, and asserted that this doctrine had never been conceived in the Latin-American republics to be the instrument for United States imperialism.

William Green, chairman of the American delegation to the Congress, defended his country's opinion by the argument that the Monroe Doctrine had the unanimous support of the people of the United States. That settles it.

It is a coincidence that this challenge of the United States rights to an everlasting protectorate over Latin-America should have been voiced by a citizen of Venezuela, for it was in the boundary dispute between that country and Great Britain that President Cleveland in 1895 threatened Britain with the consequences of any violation of the Monroe Doctrine—a principle never formally recognized by Britain in any official treaty.

Foreign nations, whose citizens have interests and capital investments in the South American republics, dare not, in the face of the Monroe Doctrine, employ military force for the protection of their rights or for the furtherance of projects of exploitation.

In its policy of "benevolent" paternalism the United States reserves to itself of all origin nations, the sole and inestimable right of protecting and exploiting South America by force of arms. A wise providence has placed these weaker nations within the sphere of American influence, and any profits which may result from this happy condition are but the just and inalienable rewards of virtue and aggressive commercialism.

The Monroe Doctrine, as interpreted in the interests of big business in 1927, has been vastly altered since its promulgation in 1823.

SAPIRO, FORD AND SENSE

Henry Ford's announcement that neither his position, his paper nor his wealth will ever again be used to belittle or attack the Jewish people on this continent is a gesture that will appreciably increase the respect of North America for him.

It was inevitable that Henry Ford and Aaron Sapiro should have clashed some time or another. Mr. Ford is an individualist representing the spirit of competition. Mr. Sapiro has devoted his career to expounding and expanding the spirit of co-operation.

By nature and thought the two are essentially inimical to one another.

But it is the spirit of co-operation that has won the round. Mr. Ford has tacitly admitted that it is neither profitable nor wise to continue his warfare with the Jewish people. Henceforth, he says, he will co-operate with them.

If warfare in this racial sense is not sensible, is it any more sensible in the commercial sense?

Mr. Ford has been a great and useful asset to this continent. May he not, in this recent admission, be standing on the brink of an even greater usefulness to the industrial life of North America?

COMPARE the Chevrolet of
with the Chevrolet of today and realize how radically Chevrolet has revised all conceptions of motor car value.

In 1920, the Chevrolet illustrated here represented the highest standards of quality and value . . . at a price of $1795 (f.o.b. Oshawa) . . . over a thousand dollars more than you pay today for a Chevrolet that possesses style, luxury and refinement unthought-of in any car a few years ago.

In following its fundamental policy of constant improvement, Chevrolet has built up a production volume which places it first among all cars in the world. And Chevrolet has shared the savings of volume purchasing and production, with the public by reducing the prices of Chevrolet cars.

So, today, you get a Chevrolet with amazing QUALITY in its every detail at a fraction of the cost of a similar model Chevrolet of seven years ago.

The Most Amazing Quality in Chevrolet History

America is in furtherance of the Ringling policy of constant enlargement. The arena portion of this season's circus introduces five rings in place of the usual three. The Big Show's personnel numbers more than sixteen hundred people, and nine hundred horses. A hundred double-length railway cars are required to transport its ten thousand marvels, plus a special Pullman for Pawah and his attendants.

America need not fear Red propaganda. It never sounds eloquent to a full stomach.

Our friends are those who happen to agree with our definition of morality.

BUY AT HOME Spend Your Money in Macleod

Purchases representing thousands of dollars are lost to us, to our trade, to our clerks and employees, to our laborers and artisans, to all the people of Macleod who exist on the products of their work. This money, if spent at home, would help to recreate Macleod financially, give a wider field of activities in business, would be helpful to every resident of this town.

If we purchased regularly from local merchants, this money would circulate in Macleod in a welcome manner. Our merchants merit our patronage; it is to our interest, and the duty of all of us to encourage the local merchant. He is one of us, he lives among us, he has the right to be encouraged by us, he is anxious to have our custom, and to give us satisfaction. We should under all circumstances give him preference, price for price, quality for quality. And nearly always the price that our local merchant asks is, if we compare the quality, just as cheap as that of the outside merchant.

Never purchase merchandise by catalogues from foreign houses before assuring yourself that you cannot procure the same articles, of the same quality (and frequently of better quality) at the same price from your local merchant.

It does not matter what goods you offer them or the ridiculous prices asked, often below cost if they don't want it at the moment they won't buy. Have you no bank account or life insurance policy on the bread winners life. When you have the astonishing bargains we offer you, you simply won't be tempted because the shoes are not just the style or shape you mean to have, after you get what you want you are satisfied and have a sign of satisfaction that altho the shoes were much higher in price, therefore it must be better.
